

I am against the consolidation of already giant media companies. It is against democnrcy, too dangerous and harmful to Americans. Not only does it lead to mediocrity in tastes, but far more dangerous is that information and commuications to the public is now manipulated by owners of corporations who want to present one view. Many voices should be allowed to be heard. As for the music industry, as well as TV industry... there is already dominating points of view, restrictions, and cohersion... (eg., in CO two dj's lost their jobs because they aired singers who the owner considered against his political viewpoint). Democracy, freedom of speech, is threatened NOW. Don't allow the corporations, Fox, CBS, ABC, NBC, HBO and CNN, who own practically everything already, to grow bigger still. They are Monopolies NOW and don't allow freedom, and a chance to speak out, for the little guys. Their managements are working only for the buck and the market place... not imagination and innovation. The outcome of their almighty power in managing information to the Public ... is frightening. Much too dangerous.
